The Secrets of Great Leaders

George Patton said, "Never tell people how to do things. Tell them what to do and they'll surprise you with their ingenuity." Well, yes and no. It's a great standard by which to lead -- sometimes. This presentation explains why. It teaches how to develop the skills of a great leader and reveals the variety of techniques and skills that make certain leaders great.

1. Leadership Skills - Contains real strategies for leaders who care about morale and about how to effectively lead.

2. Five Stupid Things That Get Great Leaders and Their Businesses Sued - Teaches leaders how immunize themselves and their businesses from liability.

3. How to Read People and Identify the Liars in Your Workforce - Indispensable for professionals who want to develop their communication skills, powers of perception, and ability to navigate interpersonal moments with coworkers using polished powers of observation.

Gaining Pride

Are you full of pride? Most people would consider that a bad thing. However, the definition of pride is to have a positive view of yourself, your accomplishments, your career, and your direction. That is not a bad thing, it is a necessary thing. This session will help you take a good look at yourself and provide you with some tools, including HFTP, that will equip you to move yourself and your career in the direction that you desire.

Internal Control Checkup: The Doctor is In!

Going beyond definitions and explanations of internal controls, this session will focus on having "patients" be able to perform internal control checkups at their own hotels, learning controls that they should not be without, and asking questions about controls that they currently have in use. The "Doctor" will discuss how to perform routine (control) examinations, recommend special tests that should be performed by the patients, and help patients write a prescription for success.

Got Fraud?

All hotels and hospitality environments have fraud; they simply do not know to what degree fraud exists! This presentation will discuss some basic fraud definitions and concepts but will focus on tools and tips that hospitality financial and technology professionals can use to diagnose the degree to which fraud may exist in their present environment.
